Bhatt debuted in 2012 as a largely unproven teenager with no film credits and within a little over a decade built a net worth that places her among Bollywood's financial elite, a trajectory driven by choosing challenging, critically respected roles over safer commercial ones.

Early Life and Background

Alia Bhatt was born March 15, 1993, in Mumbai, into one of Bollywood's most established filmmaking families. Her father, Mahesh Bhatt, is a celebrated director and her mother, Soni Razdan, is a British-Indian actress giving Bhatt dual British-Indian nationality. Her parents separated during her childhood and she was raised primarily close to her mother and half-sister, writer Shaheen Bhatt.

Before her official debut, she made a brief, uncredited appearance as a child in the 1999 thriller Sangharsh. She attended Jamnabai Narsee School in Mumbai before leaving her studies in her late teens to focus fully on acting, a decision that set her on the path toward her 2012 debut and, eventually, the Alia Bhatt net worth 2026 story that made her one of Bollywood's most financially successful actresses.

Career Breakdown

Bhatt made her debut in Student of the Year (2012), a glossy Karan Johar production. The film performed well commercially, though early reviews of her performance were mixed. Rather than following up with another safe role, she took a risk with Highway (2014), a dark Imtiaz Ali drama, a gamble that reshaped public perception of her as a genuinely capable dramatic actress.

From there, she built a resume mixing commercial hits with acclaimed work: 2 States and Humpty Sharma Ki Dulhania (2014), Udta Punjab and Dear Zindagi (2016) and Raazi (2018), playing a young Indian spy in Pakistan a role earning her third Filmfare Award. She followed with Gully Boy (2019), winning the Filmfare Critics Award and delivered career-best work in Gangubai Kathiawadi (2022), earning the National Film Award for Best Actress in 2023.

In 2025, she appeared in Chhaava, the year highest-grossing Hindi film. Her most anticipated 2026 project is Alpha, the first female-led entry in Yash Raj Films Spy Universe. Reports indicate she was paid around ₹25 crore for the physically demanding role, a jump from her typical ₹15–₹20 crore fee. Directed by Shiv Rawail and produced by Aditya Chopra, the film carries cameos from Hrithik Roshan, Salman Khan and Shah Rukh Khan.

Alia Bhatt Net Worth 2026, Full Breakdown

Alia Bhatt's net worth is most commonly cited between ₹550 crore and ₹600 crore, though estimates range from around ₹350 crore on conservative trackers to ₹600 crore, depending on how sources value her investments and production company. Without official financial disclosures, analysts rely on reported salaries and industry comparisons rather than confirmed figures.

Acting income has climbed steadily, from roughly ₹10 crore per film in 2022 to ₹15–₹20 crore more recently, with her Alpha fee reportedly reaching ₹25 crore. Her annual acting income is estimated at around ₹22.5 crore. She also expanded internationally, starring opposite Gal Gadot in Netflix's Heart of Stone (2023).

Brand endorsements are where Bhatt's profile stands out. In 2023, she became the first Indian celebrity named a global brand ambassador for Gucci. According to the Kroll Celebrity Brand Valuation Report, her total endorsement value stands at roughly $101.1 million, spanning more than 30 brands.

Business ventures add further diversification. She founded Ed-a-Mamma, a sustainable children's clothing brand, before selling a 51% stake to Reliance Retail Ventures in 2023. She's also invested in Nykaa and Phool.co and founded her production company, Eternal Sunshine Productions.

At an estimated ₹550–₹600 crore, that combination of film income, a major global endorsement and real business equity is a rarer setup in Indian cinema and it's part of why her wealth has kept climbing steadily rather than depending on any single film's box office.

Personal Life

Alia Bhatt married actor Ranbir Kapoor in April 2022 at an intimate ceremony in Mumbai, following years of public speculation after confirming their relationship in 2019. Their daughter, Raha, was born in November 2022. Before Kapoor, Bhatt was in a long-term relationship with actor Sidharth Malhotra, her Student of the Year co-star. She's been open about balancing motherhood with her acting career.
